2. What can I bring with me?

You are entitled to import into South Africa a personal allowance of 400 cigarettes, 50 cigars, 9 ounces of pipe tobacco, 2 liters of wine, 1 liter of alcohol, other gifts up to a value of R500 and any amount of foreign currency as long as you declare amounts over $20,000 to customs upon arrival.

For Mozambique you can bring $10 000 without declaring it, keep valuables and money in a small bag as on-carry bags are sometimes not allowed to be taken onto the plane with you.

3. Climate.

4. Don't underestimate the terrain

Whilst your PH will always get you into a position comfortable for you to shoot, you may have to walk & stalk for a long time before reaching that point. Make sure your hunting boots are comfortable and worn in. Excercise and being walking fit will make your hunt more enjoyable.

5. Bullets

Performance and penetration are just as important as accuracy on an African hunt, if not more. Your choice of bullets are critical. Ask your Outfitter for advice. The bullet must be tough enough to ensure penetration of the game you wish to shoot.

6. Come for the one, walk away with more.

You have travelled all the way to Africa. Legadema allows additional animals to be hunted during your booked hunt at standard fees. If you don't, you may regret it later. Especially if you come across a trophy in a localised area or habitat where you are not likely to visit again.

7. Ignoring your Professional Hunter (PH)

Whether you have hunted in Africa before or not, trust your PH to know his area and his game better than you. Take his advice, follow his instructions, trust his experience. You hired him!

8. Taking the Shot.

Taking the shot is always YOUR decision. Never shoot unless you are absolutely certain of the hit. Blood equals a trophy fee in Africa. An uncertain hit with dangerous game places your whole party in danger.

9. It's Still a Vacation...

There is only so much that can be accomplished in the time you have on safari. Do all you can to tick animals on your list but do make time to absorb your experience of Africa as well. Legadema offers a variety of additional activities. Go have a look at our "Activities and Tours" section on our website.

10. Malaria Pills

Our South African Concession is Malaria Free.

Our Mozambique concession is not Malaria Free. For your safety we recommend the purchase of anti malaria medication.
